First Reading

Numbers 11:25-29

A reading from the book of Numbers

Are you jealous on my account? Who decrees that all people may prophesy?

The Lord came down in the Cloud. He spoke with Moses, but took some of the spirit that was on him and put it on the seventy elders. When the spirit came on them they prophesied, but not again. Two men had stayed back in the camp; one was called Eldad and the other Medad. The spirit came down on them; though they had not gone to the Tent, their names were enrolled among the rest. These began to prophesy in the camp. The young man ran to tell this to Moses, 'Look', he said, 'Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp.' Then said Joshua the son of Nun, who had served Moses from his youth, 'My Lord Moses, stop them!' Moses answered him, 'Are you jealous on my account? If only the whole people of the Lord were prophets, and the Lord gave his Spirit to them all!'

Responsorial Psalm

Ps 18:8. 10. 12-14. R. v.9

(R.) The precepts of the Lord give joy to the heart.

1. The law of the Lord is perfect, it revives the soul.

The rule of the Lord is to be trusted, it gives wisdom to the simple. (R.)

2. The fear of the Lord is holy, abiding for ever.

The decrees of the Lord are truth and all of them just. (R.)

3. So in them your servant finds instructions;
great reward is in their keeping. But who can detect all his errors?

From hidden faults acquit me. (R.)

4. From presumption restrain your servant
and let it not rule me.

Then shall I be blameless, clean from grave sin. (R.)

Second Reading

James 5:1-6

A reading from the letter of St James

Your wealth is rotting.

An answer for the rich. Start crying, weep for the miseries that are coming to you. Your wealth is all rotting, your clothes are all eaten up by moths. All your gold and your silver are corroding away, and the same corrosion will be your own sentence, and eat into your body. It was a burning fire that you stored up as your treasure for the last days. Labourers mowed your fields, and you cheated them – listen to the wages that you kept back, calling out; realise that the cries of the reapers have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. On earth you have had a life of comfort and luxury; in the time of slaughter you went on eating to your heart's content. It was you who condemned the innocent and killed them; they offered you no resistance.

Gospel Acclamation

See John 17:17

Alleluia, alleluia!

Your word, O Lord, is truth: make us holy in the truth.

Alleluia!

Gospel

Mark 9:38-43. 45. 47-48

A reading from the holy Gospel according to Mark

Anyone who is not against us is for us. If your hand should cause you to sin, cut it off.

John said to Jesus, 'Master, we saw a man who is not one of us casting out devils in your name; and because he was not one of us we tried to stop him.' But Jesus said, 'You must not stop him: no one who works a miracle in my name is likely to speak evil of me. Anyone who is not against us is for us.

'If anyone gives you a cup of water to drink just because you belong to Christ, then I tell you solemnly, he will most certainly not lose his reward.

'But anyone who is an obstacle to bring down one of these little ones who have faith, would be better thrown into the sea with a great millstone round his neck. And if your hand should cause you to sin, cut it off; it is better for you to enter into life crippled, than to have two hands and go to hell, into the fire that cannot be put out.

And if your foot should cause you to sin, cut it off; it is better for you to enter into life lame, than to have two feet and be thrown into hell. And if your eye should cause you to sin, tear it out; it is better for you to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than to have two eyes and be thrown into hell where their worm does not die nor their fire go out.'

Communion Antiphon.

Cf Psalm 118:49-50

Remember your word to your servant, O Lord,
by which you have given me hope.

This is my comfort when I am brought low.

Living the Gospel

Cut it out!

The thought of cutting off a hand or foot or tearing out an eye all seem a bit extreme if taken literally. Whilst Jesus didn't mean for us to do a bit of self-surgery, if we find ourselves caught in behavior that is self-destructive or hurtful to others, the only solution is quite literally to 'cut it out'. We know within ourselves when our actions are life-giving or life-harming. Surprisingly we often persist with harmful behavior even when we know it's harmful. Jesus' solution is simple: cut out the negative behavior and get back on track. That's the principle behind Reconciliation.

Gospel Reflection

The first part of today's gospel deals with the disciples' jealousy at someone else 'cashing in' on Jesus' name and authority. It is a continuation of their limited understanding about the message and ministry of Jesus. They still cling to an idea that Jesus is going to rise up in power against the forces of Rome and, in the aftermath, they are going to be sitting pretty as associates of this powerful figure. The disciples have been blinded by their dreams of glory and forgotten that the real story is that people are being cured and having demons cast out. Rather than celebrating the healing that is occurring in Jesus' name, the disciples are jealous that it's someone else who is getting the credit. Jesus assures them, and us, that any good work being undertaken genuinely in his name is to be welcomed.

It is a reminder to us that sometimes we look down on the work of others because 'they're not one of us', or 'they're not doing it our way'.

The second portion of the gospel is one of the really challenging teachings of Jesus. Drawing on the image of the community as being a whole body, the teaching suggests that it is better to remove the part of the body/community that is causing sinfulness than have the whole body/community perish. It is a concept we are familiar with in modern medicine: sometimes it is necessary to remove diseased tissue to prevent the spread of disease. We are reminded that if we surround ourselves with negative people and negative influences, we too will become negative. If we separate ourselves from negative influences and surround ourselves with positive ones then the positive aspects of our lives will flourish.

Parish Footy Tipping Competition

The Grand Final marked the end of our season. Thank you Father Geoff for your support this year, Cherrie for all of your help each week and our 40 loyal tippers. Do you know the 7 venues used for Grand Finals besides the MCG and when the first Grand Final was played at the G or when the Grand Final was televised live for the first time in Melbourne?

John Frank was our winning tipper last week. John was one of 9 tippers who selected both winners in the third week of our Final's competitions and had the closest winning margin. Chris Houlihan was our champion tipper for 2024 shadowed by Mary Lane, Maree O'Halloran, John Frank and Lachlan Jolly.

Prize winners will be confirmed next week.

Bequests

Leaving a gift in your Will is a lasting testament to your values; ensuring that your dedication to improving the lives of others can continue for future generations.

We understand that providing for loved ones comes first, but even a small percentage of your estate left to the Parish can make a huge difference for our community, especially for those who are struggling with life's challenges also it will assist in the future growth of the Parish.

If you intend to leave a gift to the Parish in your Will, we'd love to know so that we can express our appreciation and gratitude. We would also like to have a bequest plaque created and displayed for you, on a Church memorial wall. Any information you provide will always be treated with the utmost respect for your privacy.

The Parish would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all benefactors - your generosity will enable the Parish to help future generations and give all people in our community the opportunity to enjoy 'life to the full'.

Blessings

Pope: the world is being destroyed, stop the wars while there is still time

In his message to the participants at the International Meeting for Peace organised by the Community of Sant'Egidio in Paris from 22 to 24 September following the Spirit of Assisi event called for by John Paul II in 1986, Pope Francis invites political leaders to silence weapons and exhorts believers to make fraternity grow in the world. By Tiziana Campisi

"Stop war! Stop wars!". This is the cry of so many people raised by the participants at the International Meeting for Peace organised by the Community of Sant'Egidio in Paris from 22 to 24 September. Pope Francis addresses "political leaders" in his message, saying "We are now destroying the world! Let us stop while there is still time!" The message is addressed to all the participants at the meeting, with representatives of the churches, Christian communities, religious leaders of other faiths, and the authorities participating in the event that has its origins 38 years ago by promoted by John Paul II in Assisi.

Religions for peace

Pope Francis has expressed hopes that the meeting in Paris in the Spirit of Assisi may help believers to "nurture fraternity between peoples in our time." "All too often in the past, religions were used to fuel conflicts and wars. The danger of this continues, even in our own day." Pope Francis emphasises, reiterating, as he expressed together with Grand Imam Ahmad Al-Tayyeb in the Document on Human Fraternity for World Peace and Living Together that "Religions must never incite war, hateful attitudes, hostility and extremism, nor must they incite violence or the shedding of blood" and that, if anything, "These tragic realities are the consequence of a deviation from religious teachings. They result from a political manipulation of religions and from interpretations made by religious groups who, in the course of history, have taken advantage of religious sentiment in the hearts of men and women." He emphasised that religions must not fuel "forms of nationalism, ethnocentrism and populism. Wars only escalate.

Being artisans of peace

Religions must "foster visions of peace", as witnessed in recent days in the French capital, where men and women of different cultures and faiths "experienced the power and beauty of universal fraternity", reads the text of Pope Francis' message, which urges them to be "artisans of peace", even "if others continue to make war, together we can work for peace."

May the Spirit of Assisi grow

The Pope thanked "the Community of Sant'Egidio for the passion and creativity with which it continues to keep the spirit of Assisi alive", and observed that since that distant 1986, "when the first Meeting for Peace was held", various "events have impacted our world" - from the collapse of the Berlin Wall to the beginning of the third millennium, from the growth of fundamentalisms and conflicts to climate change, the advent of emerging and converging technologies and pandemics - while today "we are in the midst of "epochal changes" without having, at present, a clear idea of where they will lead us."

Creating fraternal bonds

With his thoughts on all those in Paris this evening "gathered before the Cathedral that, after the tragic fire, is about to reopen its doors for prayer", Pope Francis also stressed "how much we need to pray for peace", because the "risk that the many conflicts in our world, rather than ceasing, will dangerously spread" has become more concrete. And he reiterates to believers the invitation expressed in Fratelli Tutti to "contribute significantly to building fraternity and defending justice in society.

Peace requires wisdom and boldness

The "great responsibility for peace" requires "wisdom, boldness, generosity and determination", Pope Francis concludes, recalling that God's dream for the world is "fraternity between all peoples", which is why believers are entrusted with the responsibility to exhort and move humanity in this direction.

As we mark Migrant and Refugee Sunday on 29th September, we need to keep in mind that the task of Christians is to walk with our brothers and sisters in company with Christ.

In Australia, as in many other nations today, many people are hostile to refugees and to migrants. That is not surprising. People who struggle to find accommodation or to keep work can easily be led to see people coming to Australia as threats. They believe that governments should solve local problems first and only then admit others to Australia. Such opinions may not make economic sense and be self-centred, but they are understandable. Less understandable and forgivable is the conduct of politicians and ideologues who fish with dynamite in troubled waters by spreading false rumours against people from other cultures, stir up violent demonstrations, and depict refugees and immigrants from unfavoured nations as dangerous people who should be locked up. They use contemptuous words as brands with which to mark people from overseas as less than human. In Great Britain and in Europe we have seen how dangerous this behaviour is, how it can be inflamed by politicians and by social media, and how it threatens peace and civil order.

REACH OUT

In these times there is little point in entering arguments about refugees. We do better to reach out to come to know and to help them. We can keep in our hearts all the persons who are doing it hard, and not to lump them together in groups in which they are treated as things and not as persons. It is right to reflect on the hardships which many people who live in Australia must bear, to feel compassion for them, and to argue for change in our unequal economy. That should then help us to open our hearts to the stories of people who have been forced from their homes and who seek protection and a new life in Australia. Australians doing it hard, and refugees and immigrants are not competitors but are all our brothers and sisters. In his 2024 message for Migrant and Refugee Sunday Pope Francis emphasises our link as Catholic Christians with people forced to leave their home country. He draws out the connections between the pleading for refugees that has marked his time as Pope and his promotion of synodality. Both flow from and encourage discernment at every level of the Catholic Church, which will then lead to practical ways of going out to live the Gospel.

PILGRIM JOURNEY

In his message he develops the links between the Gospel, the Church and people forced to leave their homes. He describes the Church as on a pilgrim journey towards the Kingdom of God, following that of Jesus, who in his life, death and rising recapitulated the journey of the people of Israel from slavery in Egypt to the promised land. In these pilgrim journeys God walked with the Jewish people, with Jesus and with the Church. Through the Church Christ now walks with people who are homeless to help them find a home. The task of Christians is to walk with our brothers and sisters in company with Christ. At a deep level we are all migrants and refugees. Our heart then belongs to our brothers and sisters who are forced to travel into strange lands.

Let us pray the prayer for this year's Refugee and Migrant Sunday:

God, Almighty Father
we are your pilgrim Church
journeying towards the Kingdom of heaven.

We live in our homeland,
but as if we were foreigners.
Every foreign place is our home,
yet every native land
is foreign to us.

Though we live on earth,
our true citizenship is in heaven.
Do not let us become possessive
of the portion of the world
you have given us as a temporary home.

Help us to keep walking,
together with our migrant brothers
and sisters,
toward the eternal dwelling
you have prepared for us.
Open our eyes and our hearts
so that every encounter with those in need
becomes an encounter with Jesus,
your Son and our Lord.
Amen.

Jokes of the Week

#1: Intolerance in the blood: In Belfast, Ireland, a Catholic priest, a Protestant minister and a Jewish rabbi were engaged in a heated theological discussion. Suddenly an angel appeared in their midst and said to them, "God sends you His blessings. Make one wish for peace and your wish will be fulfilled by the Almighty." The Protestant minister said, "Let every Catholic disappear from our lovely island. Then peace will reign supreme." The priest said, "Let there not be a single Protestant left on our sacred Irish soil. That will bring peace to this island." "And what about you, Rabbi?" said the angel. "Do you have no wish of your own?" "No," said the rabbi. "Just attend to the wishes of these two gentlemen and I shall be well pleased." (Anthony de Mello, in Taking Flight).

#2: Jealousy even in death: Feeling very ill, a tough businessman went to see his doctor. After examining him, the doctor backed away and said, "I regret having to tell you this, but you have an advanced case of highly infectious rabies. It appears you've had it for some time. It will almost certainly be fatal." In shock, the man asked the doctor for pen and paper. "Do you want to write your will?" the doctor asked. "No! I want to make a list of all the people I want to bite!" the man replied.)
